The NEW look of Enslow PUBLISHING

DISCOVER!

Young elementary readers are ready to build on what they know. Whether it's a TV show or a classroom topic, they have definite opinions on what they find fascinating and voice their wish to take in more of it. Discover! books provide the details they crave with vocabulary and content that's accessible and age-appropriate. Designed with splashes of color and graphic elements like diagrams and maps, these books support curricula with an energy and enthusiasm that readers will carry into the classroom.

INVESTIGATE!

Emerging readers are on a constant search for knowledge. They're hungry for answers to their questions that they can easily understand. Aimed at these early elementary readers in both content and comprehension, Investigate! books support second and third grade curricula as well as fulfill readers' innate need to learn more about the people, places, and processes around them.

EXPLORE!

Middle elementary readers are ready to connect with the world outside their classroom door. Explore! books take a closer look at science and social studies topics encountered in the classroom and relate them to the present moment with examples, up-to-date data, and full-color photographs. Each set has a dynamic design and unique features to match its topic, from detailed timelines to highlighted vocabulary boxes.

COMPLETE SET OF 6 BOOKS: $145.62 / $109.20 • 9781978523098

INDIVIDUAL TITLES: $24.27 / $18.20

8" x 8" • 24 pp. • Full-Color Photographs, Further Information Section, Glossary, Index

Whether you live in a city or suburb, near the coast or in Middle America, there are some commonalities between all communities. Some commonalities are the places that we need to buy groceries, mail packages, or get help. With this approachable set, readers visit the many notable places they may encounter in their town, city, or county. What happens at each community landmark is covered in age-appropriate detail and accessible language. Full-color photographs closely correlate with the texts, showing readers what to expect at each landmark and who they may meet in places like the library, hospital, and firehouse.

- Supports social studies curricula
- Highlights how individuals and institutions help a community
- Encourages participation in one's community

Space has long fascinated humanity. Myths and legends describing what the stars are made of, the cause of an eclipse, and where the moon came from have been told for centuries. With scientific progress came the opportunity to find the truth behind these stories. Today, we know more about UFOs, asteroids, and stars than we have at any point in the past. Astonishingly, we have better maps of Mars than we do of Earth's ocean floor. Through informative graphic organizers and engaging fact boxes, readers explore what we know about space—and what we have yet to learn.

- A glossary of new terms gives students a better grasp of complex scientific topics
- High-interest topics are discussed in each volume, including UFOs, the origins of the moon and stars, and the possibility of life on other planets
- Historical context explains how common myths originated, while scientific facts give the true story

for Fall 2024!

COLONISTS AND NATIVE PEOPLES

QUESTION 15
Why didn't the colonists and Native groups always get along?

..... ANSWER

The colonies were founded mostly on land that had been home to Native groups for a long time. Native Americans viewed the colonists as taking their land! Sometimes, Native people attacked the colonists, trying to make them leave. The colonists fought back.

In 1675 and 1676, New England colonists and their Native American allies fought other Native groups. The deaths of three Native Americans, land disputes, and other problems caused the war, known now as King Philip's War.

Different Beliefs

COLONISTS	NATIVE AMERICANS
believed in one God	believed in many spirits and the connection between all living things
believed one person could own land	believed land belongs to the group
women and people without land had little to no power	women had power
some colonists were rich; others were poor	had a more equal community

Both the colonists and Native groups wanted the same thing: safe places for their communities to live. But it was often hard to see beyond each other's beliefs, which could be quite different as these examples show.

Some of the most common pets in the United States are cats or dogs, but some people prefer a stranger pet. Through this set's exploration of strange pets, readers will learn how to care for weirder pets they may not have known they could own! Learn what it's like to own a potbellied pig or discover what life looks like with a ferret. For a creepy crawly pet, how does a tarantula sound? With full-color photographs paired with approachable text, readers are encouraged to learn more. Fact boxes on each page explore more about each animal and information readers need to know about owning them.

- Fact boxes explore important science information about each animal
- Graphic organizers call out important details about each pet's care
- High-interest topics encourage even reluctant readers to read more Animals have families, just like people do! For some of these animal families, their group is vital. It helps them survive as well as gives comfort and fun! In this colorful set, readers explore a variety of habitats to learn how animals in a group depend on one another and work together. The main text, written for young elementary readers, is supported by full-color photographs of animal groups up close, inviting readers into the rainforest, onto the ice, under the water, and onto the savanna!

- Topics discussed tie into lower elementary science curricula
- Variety of animals included in each volume
- Engages reluctant readers with easy-to-read design

NEW
for Fall 2024!

Some rainforest families support one another by protecting each other's young and fending off predators. Others help by finding food to share, as well as supporting each other through friendship and close bonds.

The rainforest is full of really wild families who rely on each other for support. In a habitat filled with so many different animals and plants, rainforest families have unique ways of helping one another.

NOUNS AND PRONOUNS

A noun is a person, place, or thing. Candy is a noun. A pronoun is a word that replaces a noun. It could replace candy, for example. She, I, you, and they are more pronouns.

Name the animal on the next page.
That's a noun!

It sometimes feels like kids in school are sick all the time! From colds and stomach bugs going around a classroom to ear infections that result from colds or the flu, the list of common illnesses can seem daunting—and so can dealing with them! In this set, readers and caregivers alike can find colorful, illustrated stories about kids who have dealt with a variety of health issues, such as head lice or tonsillitis. The science behind the spread of these problems is included in the main content as well as how to stop or slow the spread.

- Concludes with a quiz to test reading comprehension
- Includes symptoms and treatment ideas
- Addresses more serious problems that may occur in rare cases, such as the need for a tonsillectomy

Earth needs help. That much is often clear to even young children. But terms like intensive farming and climate change can seem like another language to them! Even pollution and renewable energy often need further explanation. This set introduces six topics related to conservation for emerging readers with beautiful, colorful images paired with simple, achievable language. Age-appropriate content explains key conservation concepts like greenhouse gases and ocean dead zones to young scientists ready to take charge and care for Earth.

- Supports Earth science curricula
- Encourages care for the natural world
- Provides readers with actionable steps they can take to help

Critical thinking is often included in science, social studies, and language arts curricula. Evaluating sources for confirmation bias and accuracy as well as understanding the scientific method are just a few examples of ways students encounter critical thinking. However, using the logic that's part of these critical thinking exercises is important in everyday life too! This set encourages students to be creative, get their facts right, prove their points, and test their ideas. Each volume includes relatable examples of how to use each principle in their daily life, such as at school or with family members, as well as questions to consider.

- Includes three to four short biographies in each book of individuals who used the title principle to find success
- Encourages independent problem-solving
- Engages readers with multiple puzzles and riddles as well as explanations for their answers

Sickness, accidental gunshot wounds, and getting caught under a wagon wheel: these were just some of the dangers those traveling the Oregon Trail faced! And once they got to their destination, pioneers didn't even have toilet paper like we do today. Interesting facts like these engage readers from the first page of each book in this set that highlights the lesser-known details of life during important time periods: the American Revolution, the gold rush, and more. Historical images complement at-level main text that includes important historical figures and events that are part of the social studies curriculum.

- Draws in reluctant students with a fun perspective on history
- Graphic organizers, maps, and timelines aid comprehension
- Relatable examples and information allow readers to practice comparing and contrasting the past and present

The National Park Service protects and manages over 400 sites across the United States. Of these sites, only 63 of them are considered national parks. With millions of visitors each year, these parks are an important part of both the history of the United States and the ecological protection of our natural landscape. Through these books, readers take an adventure through the many hiking trails, rivers, and lakes featured in these parks and learn about what makes each of them important. With full-color photographs featuring the brilliant scenery and animals living there, readers take an up-close adventure through these parks.

- Approachable text explores historical details in a fun way
- Maps in each volume show readers where to find each park
- Fact boxes aid young readers' understanding

NEW
for Fall 2024!

GEORGE B. DORR

During the 1880s, many rich European vacationers were interested in preserving the natural beauty of Mount Desert Island. George B. Dorr was one of these people. In 1916, Dorr gave the U.S. government the land he and others had acquired for preservation. Mount Desert Island became a national monument!

Dorr continued to acquire land and worked to make all of it into a national park. In 1919, Lafayette National Park became the first national park created east of the Mississippi River.

George B. Dorr was the first superintendent of Acadia National Park.

MORE TO KNOW

Lafayette National Park was renamed Acadia National Park in 1929. Acadia was what French explorers called parts of Maine and parts of Canada's present-day New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Quebec.

Twelve-year-old Daylan hasn't gone swimming in years, not since he had a frightening encounter in El Naci river with Cihuamichin—a legendary water woman with the power to bring either safety or destruction to his small Mexican community. Daylan often has nightmares about Cihuamichin. At school, he's bullied for his fear of swimming and his social anxiety. When a new kid named Eliam starts at Daylan's school, Daylan is forced to confront feelings that he has about himself, and maybe even get in the water again. But Eliam becomes part of a troublesome crew, joining them as they break the water woman's rules. When they threaten the safety that Daylan and his town desperately need, Daylan must find a way to overcome his fear of the river—and take the plunge.

MONDAY AT SCHOOL

means wearing navy blue trousers, a uniform shirt, and well-cleaned shoes.

"I put your sandwich in your lunch box!" Mom yells as I walk to the school doors.

"I—I know," I stammer.

At least she's not blowing kisses at me anymore.

Mom is a counselor at a high school. She believes that's why she always says the "right words."

Brissia's eyes are glued to a page as I enter our classroom.

14

Brissia is the town's star swimmer.

Before even saying hello, she says, with a smile that shows her braces, "Look, look!"

She hands me the page:

THE SCHOOL INVITES YOU TO THE OPEN WATER SWIMMING COMPETITION

Another thing to stress about besides math.

Brissia thinks she can help me swim again. I'm not sure about that.

Giant eels have invaded the Jersey Shore town where 12-year-old Liam is spending the summer at Gramps's cottage. The eels chew up postcards in mailboxes, get into Mom's paints, and cause traffic accidents. No one knows why the eels are so enormous, or how to stop them from crawling everywhere. Some answers could lie in the journals Gramps left behind before he died last fall. Does it have to do with the local power plant? Will the stubborn town leaders listen to a couple of kids? Liam and his new friend Ceila set out to crack the mystery of the giant eels, but one wrong step could get them into a world of trouble.

Ace hates sharing a computer with his older sister, Nora. When Ace and Nora get into a fight over the computer, they're both grounded from using it. But Ace has a new idea he wants to work on—designing a magician character named Fabian who reminds him of learning magic tricks with his absent father. Ace sneaks onto his mom's top-secret work computer in the middle of the night. But when Ace saves the Fabian file, something strange happens. Fabian comes to life on the screen and starts deleting files. When Ace and Nora try to fix the issue, they're sucked into the computer world. Now the siblings have no choice but to work together before Fabian erases everything on the hard drive—including them.

Meadow is enjoying a carefree country summer, tending her beloved 4-H chickens and freely exploring the outdoors. Content at home with her father, brother, and Nanna, Meadow wishes she could stay a kid forever. Everything changes the day the man in the green car stops her on the road, alarming her with an uncomfortable request. The brief encounter fills her with a strange new anxiety that she can't share with anyone. As fear fills her every move, she makes her world smaller and smaller to feel safe. But when a friend is also approached by the driver of the green car, Meadow realizes she must talk about what happened to protect others. Like the jack pine growing from the rocky cliff, Meadow can't fight growing up any longer, but maybe she can change her corner of the world for the better.

Twins Adam and Adriana Carver couldn't be more different these days, but they are forced to spend time together on a family vacation in a remote New England village. Though the neighborhood looks charming, the locals are spacey and distant. They seem barely able to speak. Soon the twins' parents begin forgetting everyday things—the locations of keys and parked cars. This quickly escalates into something far more troubling. As the adults start losing their core memories, the twins must hunt down the nightmarish cause of this tragedy. But the monsters in this peaceful seaside community prove far darker and more threatening than anything they might have imagined.

I nudged Adriana.
But she wouldn't look up from her phone.

"See the lighthouse?"
I asked.

At the end of the pier,
a white tower

Beyond it, tiny boats sailed
beneath cloudless skies.

"Uh-huh,"
she said.

"I thought we were staying on the water,"
I said, disappointed.

"We are,"
Dad said.
"By a little river
that flows into the bay."

Oliver loves mountain biking on rocky, wooded trails. And he has an unlikely partner—his much older half sister Morgan. One summer evening while out with their dog Digby, Oliver tries to impress Morgan by leading her down a new trail he claims to know. They end up at the bottom of a canyon with no choice but to push their bikes up the steep trail. Then disaster strikes. Morgan slips and badly injures her ankle. With no cell service, it's up to Oliver to hike out and get help. But daylight is fading fast, and danger waits in the wilderness.

Twelve-year-old Nora's mom manages The Knight, a medieval theme restaurant on the verge of shutting down for good. When Nora and her new friend Mavis stop by The Knight to borrow costumes for their school play, a snowstorm hits. Nora and Mavis are trapped overnight with Diane, the restaurant's eccentric cook. Nora is familiar with Diane's many tall tales, so she doesn't pay much attention to her strange theory about hidden gold. But when they find evidence that Diane might be telling the truth, Nora starts to wonder if treasure really is hidden in the crumbling castle—and if it could save the restaurant.

ALTON HEIGHTS ALL-STARS

By David Aro

What happens when a school cuts its basketball team? The kids who live in the Alton Heights housing complex need to come up with a plan fast. That's how the Alton Heights All-Stars team is born. They may not have matching jerseys, a coach, or even a regular court to practice on, but they make up for it with perseverance and heart. Cam, Jasmine, Brianna, Tyler, and Markus prove to everyone that they're not just playing around; they're out to be all-stars.

THE BAD KIDS IN 4B

By Brynn Kelly

The kids in classroom 4B have a reputation as the "baddest" kids in school. What no one sees is that each kid has a reason for acting that way. Mila has been removed from her mom's care and placed with her aunt, whom she doesn't trust. Landon has trouble learning, but doesn't want anyone to know. Jordan's father was recently sent to jail. Jayme has been taking care of her younger siblings while her mother starts dating again. Together, the "bad kids" in 4B learn about acceptance, stepping out of their molds, and confronting life's challenges.

THE CLUB

By Elizabeth Gordon

Every day after school, kids in the Parkside neighborhood hang out at the community rec center, which they call The Club. Milo, Noah, Zoe, Javi, and Addy couldn't be more different, but they have one thing in common, The Club. The Club has a way of pushing their comfort zones and making them try new things, from competing in the annual go-kart rally to starring in a musical. Together, they'll learn some tough life lessons, discover their strengths, and find their true friends.

WE THE WEIRDOS

By Charley Pickle

Four kids sit together at the outcast lunch table on the first day of middle school. Amy has a stutter, but wants to be class president. Maci would rather draw than talk to people. Eli is a pastor's kid who has been labeled a "goody two-shoes." Jayden often lashes out at people and gets upset in class. The kids have almost nothing in common, except one thing: they're the class weirdos. If they want to rise above their reputations, they're going to need to do it together.

Abby used to be close to her older sister Natalie, but now they seem to have nothing in common. And their constant bickering is putting a strain on the family's winter vacation. After a day on the slopes, their frustrated parents leave the girls alone in their cabin together. But when two suspicious men appear at the remote cabin where they're staying, Natalie is in serious danger. It's up to Abby to use her quick thinking to fend off the intruders. Though the sisters initially escape the intruders, they're forced out into the elements—with the men in hot pursuit. Can the sisters put their differences aside to survive this blood-chilling night?

Living in a dystopic future, Leah and her younger sister Rachel are fighting to survive in a world that's becoming increasingly unlivable. Earth's atmosphere has been poisoned by pollution, so each year the government—Terra—holds a contest for all eligible, healthy 16-year-olds. The winners, 100 teens who possess skills that will contribute to Venus's floating biosphere, are sent to the Floating City. Though both Leah and Rachel are talented gardeners, Leah's pollution-induced asthma makes her ineligible. After Rachel is selected for the Floating City, she tricks Terra's medical staff and sends Leah in her place to save Leah's life. Once on Venus, Leah continues to hide her true identity. She is assigned to work in the city's greenhouse where she meets Rose, who awakens something inside her she never knew existed. But when Leah's asthma returns, she's forced to find out whether true love can survive deceit, and if her sister's sacrifice was ultimately worth the price.

THE PROMISE

Rain pounded our metal roof.

Making it hard to hear.

Rachel was in the greenhouse tending plants.

I was inside tending someone else.

Deathwatch, I thought, though we didn't call it that.

We just said Mom was resting.

Waiting for when she'd meet up with Dad.

I was adjusting her blanket
when she grabbed my arm.

"Leah," she wheezed.
Her voice a kettle's
hiss.

"If Rachel's chosen, make her go.

She's the only chance this family has."

"Promise," said Mom, fingers hot on my wrist.

Her dark eyes full of fear.

"I promise," I whispered,
looking away.

Trying my best to swallow the lie.

It's the summer before his senior year, and Dustin can't wait to take a special trip to Japan with his high school baseball team. His plans are quickly dashed by the sudden death of his similarly athletic cousin. As someone focused on fitness, Dustin is deeply shaken by this loss. While attending his very first funeral, Dustin meets Andrea, the new stepdaughter of a distant relative who seems to have a playlist for every occasion. At first, Dustin dislikes her. But as the summer continues, death seems to be stalking them both. More funerals crop up, one after another, challenging Dustin's sense of stability. Andrea is there at every gathering, each with its own flair and antics by quirky family members, trying to find meaning in the madness alongside Dustin. As they reflect on life, death, and music, they learn to embrace the weird ways people cope—and find a path forward.

It's the summer of 1970, and 15-year-old Jane is still reeling from the violent death of her father. She starts partying to deal with her grief, but a frantic call from her mother leads to her arrest. Jane awaits her hearing with hope, but instead she is sentenced to a yearlong stay at the New York State Training School for Girls. She faces bullying and solitary confinement, and all seems lost. Then she's introduced to the Racket, an underground world of gender role-play, romantic relationships, and chosen families the inmates have created. She befriends and develops deep feelings for fellow inmate Jo-Jo, who shares her love of music. Jane comes to appreciate the complex lives of people she never would have gotten to know on the outside—but she knows that her new family can be taken away in an instant.

High school is rough for a gay teen brujo going through his first breakup. And Alejandro's supernatural ability to see the past with the use of his tarot cards makes it so the past is all he ever really focuses on. Alejandro would like to pour his passion into piano to prepare for the upcoming winter recital, but bizarre supernatural forces seem out to get him. When a time-traveling demon arrives with a mission to stop the upcoming high school winter recital from taking place, Alejandro must focus on the future to slay the demon, save the recital, and maybe get a second chance at love.

ONE-CARD PULL

An image appears in my card.

Zander slaps his forehead. "Of course! I forgot to check my band hall locker!"

I don't react to his response. I simply swallow a spork-full of the fruit cup.

Then, I shuffle the card back into my deck.

Zander pulls out his deck of cards. They're exactly like mine. And exactly like every other brujo's deck of cards. His initials are engraved in emerald.

Z.A. for Zander Avaloz.

"Bruh, for real," I say. "I don't care to know anything about my future."

My head turns away. To a random direction. I instantly regret it.

Gustavo is walking into the crowded cafeteria. His arm is wrapped around Rey's scrawny neck.

The guy he left me for.

My hands quickly brush my bushy brown hair into place. It was an Edgar haircut two months ago. Now it's more like an untamed mushroom.

It's the summer before sophomore year, and Moe is stuck in the middle of Nowhere-ville, in a broken-down cottage on Lake Ontario with no one her age for miles. Her neighbor's grandson, Zeke, definitely doesn't count. He is only eight, but desperation and loneliness force Moe to follow Zeke on his adventures. After a nasty storm, Moe finds a strange key and begins having visions of a girl roller-skating at sunset and then disappearing into the lake. Moe and Zeke comb the shoreline looking for clues, but when his grandparents find out, they forbid Zeke from spending any more time with Moe. Faced with even more isolation and increasingly vivid visions, Moe must figure out what happened to the mysterious girl and why it forced her temporary hometown into silence.

Halley had a perfectly fine junior prom with her two best friends. Yet when she wakes up the next morning, it's the day of junior prom. Again. And again. And again. Guided by her genre-savvy knowledge of movies and books, Halley assumes there's some burgeoning disaster the universe wants her to fix ... if only she knew what. The only way to find out is by delving into the lives and secrets of her classmates, both her friends and those she's been in school with for years and yet barely knows. Prom night after prom night, Halley begins to suspect that maybe everyone's a bit of a disaster—and maybe she doesn't know anyone as well as she thinks.

Mariana didn't dance with anybody.

Except me. And Roman, of course.

But we don't count.

Roman
(my other Actual Friend) and Mariana and me:

we're kind of one person.

Roman helped us
pick our dresses.
He bought our corsages.
And we three
went to prom.
Like we went to kindergarten:
together.

Mariana
spent one quarter of prom upset.
In the bathroom.

So I spent one quarter of prom with her.
In the bathroom.

I finally got her out, because we couldn't leave Roman alone.

We spent the next quarter of prom
looking for him.

We found Roman outside,
with theater friends.
Trying a vape pen.
Despite his asthma.
And allergies.

Prom's last half:

- Roman coughed.
(Constantly.)

- We found the buffet stations.
(The good stuff? Gone.)
(The rest? Cold.)

- Watched our classmates.

(Plus Mark Peterson's date, who doesn't go to our school, and who hung around alone.)

And we three danced.

Ana has big plans to be an important writer. But not a romance writer, like her mom, because she's seen what love does to people. From her parents' constant bickering to her sister's endless string of broken hearts to her best friend's on-again, off-again relationship, love is messy and Ana wants no part of it. When a school writing contest pairs her up with Alejandro, a notorious serial dater, Ana is annoyed. Alejandro is everything she can't stand—romantic, sentimental, and idealistic. But Ana is willing to put her qualms aside for the sake of the big prize: publication. As the two work together to create a winning story, Ana finds herself impressed with Alejandro's writing. But despite their new connection, there's no way she can fall for him. After all, she's sure this is definitely not a love story.

Alyssa is an ice skater who prefers to skate alone. She lives in rural Alaska, where a quiet frozen lake is her happy place. But now she's moving to sunny, loud Los Angeles. As the new girl in town, Alyssa isn't sure if she'll ever fit in. When the local roller derby team takes Alyssa under its wing, she's not sure she wants to trade her ice skates and solitude for roller skates and teammates. Alyssa decides to leave her comfort zone. Will she find her place, or will the pace and volume of roller derby be too much to handle?

When a solar flare engulfs an interstellar space route, the vacation ship Star Chaser crash-lands on a hostile planet. Sixteen-year-old Zenna finds herself separated from her parents and in charge of her younger brother. They must traverse the alien wilderness to find her parents—if they are even still alive. Worse yet, Star Chaser wasn't the only ship to crash. Zenna soon comes face-to-face with juvenile delinquents that were being transported to a prison planet, and the last thing they want is to be rescued. But Zenna may find an ally in the stoic Arron. Strong and silent, he may just be the help she needs to reunite with her family and make it off the hostile planet alive.

Sixteen-year-old Cara has cerebral palsy. Self-conscious about her limp, Cara is convinced her disability is what causes boys to always place her in the friend zone. This summer, it seems to be happening again with her new crush, Josh. The two of them are huge fans of a popular mystery podcast and, as it happens, Cara has a real-life mystery of her own. She's never been that curious about the donor who is her biological father, but now that Josh shows an interest in learning his identity, she's all in. As Cara starts exploring, she stumbles upon a family secret that just might explain the feeling she's always had that something important is missing from her life. But with this knowledge, her life may never be the same again.

Mom Tells Me

Celeste's wispy baby hair was the same red as mine.

Grandma says we looked almost exactly alike.

But I was bigger.
I was stronger.
Our rough birth was much harder on her.

*If she had lived, Mom goes on,
it's likely she'd be very disabled.
Unable to walk.
Or speak. Or see.*

*She would have had a good life anyway, I say.
She would have had me.*

I Thought

they didn't tell me about my twin because it upset them too much.
I thought they were protecting themselves.

*We were so happy and so sad
at the same time,
Mom explains.*

*So we did our best to focus on the happy part,
Grandma says.
After all, you needed us.*

*And, Mom takes my hand,
we never wanted
you to think,
even for a moment,
that you weren't enough.*

Mal has finally completed the long, dangerous journey to safety in the Shining City. And though he started the trek with friends, he is now the only survivor. There, in the sparkling metropolis, he believes that he is protected from the dangers of the climate-ravaged world. But as a refugee, Mal must live in special housing, cannot move around freely, and faces extreme prejudice. He learns that he can earn full citizenship by working through an elaborate points system, which involves taking part in deadly jobs and games. Risking his life to become a citizen of the Shining City, Mal realizes that his dream of safety was an illusion. Soon, Mal becomes involved with a group of revolutionaries. In this dystopian sequel to Our Broken Earth, Mal needs to choose between supporting the oppressive system that saved his life and fighting for what's right.

Angela has been training on a trapeze since she was a child. She loves the dizzying heights, the acrobatics, and the way it tests her strength. But she doesn't love the way her Guatemalan mother is always pushing her to train harder because "immigrants have to try twice as hard just to shine half as bright." When Angela's best friend introduces her to boxing, she finds something that makes her genuinely happy. There's no pressure to be graceful and no expectation to be perfect. But the more Angela practices boxing, the more she realizes her pursuit of happiness might risk her reputation for perfection. And if she's not the perfect daughter, then who is she?

Living with an energy-limiting chronic illness, Val spends a lot of time in her bedroom. Her older sister Lia had always found ways to make "bed world" feel just as fun as the outside world. But all that changed after Lia died in a tragic accident—an accident Val feels partially responsible for. On an online peer support forum, she meets someone she can finally open up to—a voice hearer who's dealt with her own share of grief. Through a series of letters to her sister, Val confronts life after her sister's death as she tries to find a way to make "bed world"—and the rest of the world—livable again.

Yuriel's poor neighborhood in Monterrey, Mexico, isn't a place where fairy tales happen. Yuriel and his cousin Azul work each day doing laundry to help their family make a living. So when Azul, a trans teen, decides she wants to mark her transition to womanhood with a quinceañera, Yuriel is sure it's an impossible dream. They don't have the money, and besides, Azul's father would never support her transition. But as an openly gay artist in a traditional family, Yuriel sees how important this rite of passage is for Azul. As Yuriel risks everything to play fairy godmother to Azul, he realizes it's going to take a little bit of magic to pull off this once-in-a-lifetime quinceañera.

Fun-loving troublemaker Ivy Sawyer is unjustly fired from her ice cream shop job, and now she's out for revenge. The owner of the shop is running to be reelected mayor of their small town, and Ivy will do anything to keep him from winning. What she doesn't expect is being elected mayor herself as the candidate of the prankish "Surprise Party." Now Ivy has to deal with governing the town while juggling her senior year of high school and her activist friends' expectations. She has big problems to solve, from poverty to housing to flooding, and can't seem to win over the conservative city council. Knowing people's lives are on the line, Ivy sets out to govern creatively without losing who she is. But she'll have to figure out: what's the difference between a troublemaker and a leader?

About the Author Section, High/Low Content

Daniel Valdez loves skateboarding with his friend, Gracie. Sometimes he even wonders if they can be more than friends. Then Gracie's mother kills her two children before turning the gun on herself. As grief counselors swoop into his high school and the whole community reels from the horrific deaths, Daniel drowns in his own pain and disbelief. What is his life without Gracie in it? As Daniel works through his grief, he'll need to find a way to move forward without leaving Gracie behind.

Reviews/Awards:

"Debut author Bowen ultimately offers a glimmer of redemption. Without judgment, she uses Paige's first-person narrative to show the dangers of alcohol and drugs by constructing a linear path of poems that will haunt the reader. Engaging novel." —Kirkus

"Give this coming-of-age work to fans of YA verse novels and reluctant readers." —School Library Journal

"Teens overwhelmed by a parent called up for active duty will connect with this quick read that depicts young people confronting life without the benefit of a consistent parental presence. VERDICT: This novel in verse is recommended for reluctant readers, especially in areas where there is a large military population."

—School Library Journal

Reviews/Awards:

★ "James proves the power of the novel in verse as a vehicle to convey rich characterization, complex themes, and a reading experience that levels the field between struggling and skilled readers. James's verse is fluid, and each chapter is a complete scene that builds Jamie's story with compelling insight and empathy. VERDICT: Highly recommended for school and public libraries." —School Library Journal, STARRED REVIEW
