Search for Sounds • Grade: PreK–K

The Search for Sounds series is designed to help students develop phonemic awareness within the context of story and picture. Students are presented with wordless books and have fun finding items in the pictures that highlight target sounds. Each sound's related letter is also on the page in a clear lowercase font. Cumulative read-aloud texts linked to the pictures are read by the teacher and present social studies and science concepts of interest to young children. Some of the books include recurring characters exploring the topics while others are more typical nonfiction. Interest will be generated as your students work to isolate, identify, and link the sounds to words. The books include lists of suggested words/sounds to search for as well as a note to the caregiver.

THE LIFE OF GERONIMO

"Informative and easy to read. A worthy resource for libraries looking to beef up their biography sections, especially where there's a lack of Native American representation." —School Library Journal, Series Made Simple

Heroes of Native American History

When European colonizers arrived in what is now the United States, they were often met with resistance from Native Americans. This resistance took place over the course of many years. Throughout, leaders emerged and became heroes to their people. Some, such as Geronimo and Osceola, were renowned as great warriors. Others, such as Tecumseh and Red Jacket, used their words to fight instead of weapons. Historical photographs give young readers a glimpse into the lives of these heroes, and a list of recommended websites and books give a jumping-off point for further independent research.

- · Full-color photographs bring the age-appropriate text to life
- · A glossary of new words helps young readers expand their vocabulary

The marge is the center of the Maori community. People gather here for hui (meetings), celebrations, and tangihanga (funerals). Each marae has a courtyard, wharenui (meeting house), and wharekai (dining hall). There may be other buildings too What happens if you are invited onto a marae? Don't worry!
Welcoming people is a part of manaakitanga. This means showing hospitality and care toward others. In the nowhiri (welcome ceremony), your hosts will show you what to do.

First, the visitors wait to be greeted and called onto the marae Then, the hosts and visitors take turns to give speeches and sing. Harry stood up on his hind legs, put his forepaws over his eyes, and whined pitifully. Mike snorted, then turned to see the girl and her dog continue their walk as if nothing had happened.

"Michael! Come here! And bring that dog with you!"

Mike whirled to see his mother standing on the front porch of their house. From the look on her face, he knew that he and Harry were in big trouble.

Did you know that chameleons change their color to show how they are feeling? Well, most chameleons do ... Conker is a little different. He doesn't change color! He doesn't turn yellow in fright or blue with sadness or red when he's mad. At first, this made Conker upset. But eventually he learns that he can do something special—he can talk about his feelings! This charming rhyming tale teaches readers about the importance of sharing their emotions, as well as the importance of understanding their unique strengths. Activities invite readers to explore self-care strategies and identify their feelings.
